CONTENTS

Foreword	v
Acknowledgements	vii
Introduction
Gaby ORÉ AGUILAR and Felipe GÓMEZ ISA	1
Addressing Horizontal Inequalities in Post-Conflict Reconstruction
Graham K. BROWN, Corinne CAUMARTIN, Arnim LANGER and Frances STEWART	11
Introduction	11
1. Groups, horizontal inequalities and conflicts	12
2. An overview of policies towards reducing HIs in post-conflict countries	19
3. Do post-conflict policies include policies towards reducing inequalities?	26
4. Conclusion	29
A Critique of Rights in Transitional Justice: The African Experience
Makau MUTUA	31
Introduction	31
1. Human rights and the African reality	34
2. Can human rights recover the African state?	35
3. Reconceiving transitional justice	38
4. The limitations of transitional justice concepts	40
5. As a way of conclusion	45
Gender Equality and Women's Human Rights in Conflict Situations: Evolving Perspectives
Sunila ABEYSEKERA	47
Introduction	47
1. Issues of inequality: from a gender lens	49
2. The role of women in conflict: issues of inequality	50
3. The narrow focus on women in conflict situations; the early years of the 20 th century wars	53

4. Modern wars: from the second half of the 20 th century to the present	56
5. Contemporary framing of the impact of conflict on women	60
6. Conclusion: moving forward to achieve a substantive equality for women in conflict situations.	64

Women in the Sri Lankan Peace Process: Included but Unequal Kumudini SAMUEL	67
--	----

Introduction: the gendered nature of peacemaking.	67
1. The Sri Lankan peace process.	69
2. Lessons from the peace process	72
2.1. Stages in a peace process.	73
2.2. Pre-negotiation stage	73
2.3. Framework/substantive stage.	74
3. Women's engagement with the formal peace process	75
3.1. Women call for a stronger ceasefire agreement.	75
3.2. Women call for a gender sensitive framework to peacemaking	76
4. Appointment of the Sub-Committee on gender issues	78
4.1. Confidence building.	79
4.2. Women or gender.	81
4.3. Division of responsibility and agenda setting	82
4.4. SGI's terms of reference.	83
5. Conflict and masculinity	86
6. Analysing the Sub-Committee on gender issues.	87
6.1. Appointment and composition	87
6.2. Autonomy and compromise.	89
6.3. Marginalisation from mainstream agenda	89
6.4. Inclusiveness	92
7. Representation and participation: dilemmas, challenges and lessons learnt.	93
7.1. Engaging with militant women	93
7.2. Engagement with the State	94
7.3. Political autonomy	95
7.4. Engagement with civil society and the politics of coalition building	98
8. Reclaiming the emancipatory politics of feminism	99
9. Way forward: negotiating political engagement for social transformation	100

Horizontal Inequalities in Post-Conflict Reconstruction: Guatemala and Nepal

Graham K. BROWN and Corinne CAUMARTIN. 101

Introduction 101

1. Guatemala 102
 - 1.1. Ethnic differences and indigenous issues fuelling conflict 102
 - 1.2. HIs concerns in the peace accords. 105
 - 1.3. Limits and achievements in addressing HIs in post-conflict
Guatemala 107
2. Nepal 114
 - 2.1. Ethnic differences and indigenous issues fuelling conflict 115
 - 2.2. HIs concerns in foreign aid and reconstruction 119
3. Conclusion. 121

Asserting Women's Economic and Social Rights in Transitions

Gaby ORÉ AGUILAR 123

Introduction 123

1. Socio-economic vulnerability of women in conflict. 126
 - 1.1. Violations of women's social and economic rights 127
 - 1.2. Reconstruction policies and financing: deficits in gender equality and women's human rights 131
2. Economic and social rights standards in post-conflict 135
 - 2.1. The absence of economic and social rights. 135
 - 2.2. Key features of the economic and social rights normative framework 138
 - 2.2.1. State obligations. 139
 - 2.2.2. Non-discrimination 140
 - 2.2.2.1. Definitions 141
 - 2.2.2.2. Mandatory and immediate 141
 - 2.2.2.3. Formal (de jure) and substantive (de facto) discrimination 142
 - 2.2.2.4. Special temporary measures 142
 - 2.2.2.5. Obligation to regulate and monitor the conduct of non-state actors. 142
 - 2.2.2.6. Direct and indirect discrimination 143
 - 2.2.2.7. Systemic discrimination. 143
 - 2.2.2.8. Multiple discrimination. 143
 - 2.2.3. Non-derogation 143
 - 2.2.4. Minimum core obligations 144
 - 2.2.5. Obligations in contexts of 'severe resources constraints' . . . 145

2.3. CESCER, concluding observations on conflict and post-conflict countries	146
2.3.1. Recommendations on countries immersed in conflict	147
2.3.2. Recommendations on countries in transition	148
3. ESCR in transitional justice mechanisms	152
3.1. Prosecutions	153
3.2. Reparation adjudications	156
3.3. Truth commissions	163
3.4. Policy and institutional reform	164
4. Conclusions and way forward	166

Exploitation of Natural Resources in Conflict Situations:

The Colombian Case

Giulia TAMAYO	171
---------------------	-----

Introduction	171
1. Preliminary considerations	175
1.1. The impact of conflicts on the environment and ecosystem	177
1.2. The impact of state policies and natural resource management during conflicts	178
1.2.1. Gender impact in armed conflicts	179
1.2.2. The impact of conflict on indigenous peoples	180
1.3. Resource management policies and national security	182
2. Responsibilities under international law	183
2.1. Responsibilities for violations of the right to the environment and natural resources	183
2.2. Responsibilities of the state and non-state actors for violations of the rights of women and indigenous peoples	185
2.3. Perspectives on international responsibility for environmental and natural resource protection in contexts of armed conflict	188
3. Colombia: a prolonged conflict with high human and environmental costs	189
3.1. Land occupation by paramilitary and armed non-state belligerents	191
3.2. The linkages between national security policies and the eradication of coca plantations	191
3.3. Human rights violations and environmental defenders	194
3.3.1. Impact on women's rights	195
3.3.2. Impact on indigenous peoples and Afro-descendants	198
3.3.2.1. Loss of habitat and forced displacement	198
3.3.2.2. Investments and mega-projects in indigenous lands and Afro-Colombian communities	201

3.4. Legitimisation of the appropriation of indigenous territories and resources.	203
4. Conclusions and perspectives.	204

Indigenous Peoples and Peace Agreements: Transforming Relationships or Empty Rhetoric?

Jérémie GILBERT	207
-----------------------	-----

Introduction	207
1. The new deal: redefining the state	209
1.1. The recognition of the indigenous identity	209
1.2. Negotiating self-determination and autonomy	213
1.3. Political rights and political participation	217
1.4. Land rights.	218
2. Empty rhetoric: limitations to the implementation of peace agreements.	220
2.1. The ILO and peace agreements: the case of Mexico and Bangladesh.	222
2.2. The UN and the monitoring of implementation: the case of Guatemala	225
Conclusion and way forward	228

Gender in Post-Conflict Reconstruction Processes in Africa

Itziar RUIZ-GIMÉNEZ ARRIETA	231
-----------------------------------	-----

Introduction: incorporating gender in the world of peacebuilding	231
1. Obstacles to integrating gender equality in peacebuilding	235
1.1. The implementation of universal prescriptions.	236
1.1.1. The illusion of neutrality in post-conflict intervention.	236
1.1.2. Invisibility of gender in the genesis of violence and in political resistance struggles.	238
1.1.3. The rebuilding of exclusive systems	241
1.1.4. Identity and diversity in the experience of women	241
1.2. Barriers to the effective integration of women and gender issues in peace missions.	243
1.3. Obstacles to the effective inclusion of African women in peace processes	247
1.3.1. Factors endogenous to African countries	250
1.3.2. Conflicting factors in the 'liberal peace complex'	251
1.3.2.1. Strengthening of armed combatants in peace processes.	251
1.3.2.2. A policy of selective justice and impunity.	252

1.3.2.3.	Strengthening warlords and weakening the rule of law	253
1.3.2.4.	Challenges to the inclusion of gender in peace agreements	254
2.	Gender and the ‘liberal peace complex’ at cross purposes	255
2.1.	The security dimension	255
2.2.	The political dimension	257
2.3.	The economic dimension	260
3.	Conclusions and recommendations for an effective implementation of Resolution 1325	262

Repairing Historical Injustices: Indigenous Peoples in Post-Conflict Scenarios
Felipe GÓMEZ ISA	265

Introduction	265
1. The right to reparation for past abuses	266
1.1. Reparation as an integral process	272
1.2. Forms of reparation	273
2. The progressive recognition of indigenous peoples’ right to reparation for historical injustices.	278
2.1. The Durban Process.	279
2.2. The UN Declaration on the rights of indigenous peoples	285
3. Indigenous peoples in armed conflict contexts: the Colombian case	287
4. Reparation for historical injustices in post-conflict situations: the Guatemala case.	293
5. Conclusion and way forward	299

Privatising the Use of Force: Accountability and Implications for Local Communities
JOSÉ L. GÓMEZ DEL PRADO	301

Introduction	301
1. The privatisation of warfare and security in low-intensity and post-conflict contexts.	304
2. Blurring the boundaries of humanitarian work: who are the private military and security companies	308
3. Victims or perpetrators? Who are the ‘private security guards’?	312
4. Impact on the local populations and lack of accountability	315
4.1. Iraq: humanitarian crisis and insecurity	316
4.2. Afghanistan: a free-market logic of justice and reconstruction	319
Conclusion and way forward	322

About the Authors	327
------------------------------------	-----