1. Introduction

Patent documents are one of the most comprehensive data sources on technology development. As such, they provide a unique source of information to analyze and monitor technological performance. Although technology indicators based on patent documents have certain limitations¹, Griliches' observation of almost two decades ago still seems to hold: "In spite of all the difficulties, patent statistics remain a unique resource for the analysis of the process of technical change. Nothing else even comes close in the quantity of available data, accessibility, and the potential industrial, organizational and technological detail." (Griliches, 1990). Patent indicators are now used by companies and by policy and government agencies² alike to assess technological progress on the level of regions, countries, domains³, and even specific entities such as companies, universities and individual inventors.

In addition, from the mid-1980s onwards, a broader conception of the dynamics underlying innovative performance, synthesized by the concept of the 'innovation system', has emerged (e.g. Freeman, 1987; Lundvall, 1992; Nelson, 1993, Nelson and Rosenberg, 1993). This concept sees innovative performance on the level of regions, nations or industries as driven by industrial innovative activity and the pursuit of scientific excellence, both of which are influenced and shaped by institutional frameworks. Moreover, interaction among different institutional actors is advanced as a further explanation for differences in technological and innovative performance. These interactions are seen as critical in the process of knowledge generation and diffusion on a national, regional and industrial level.

A corollary of this conception of innovation dynamics is the need for refinements in patent indicators. Sector assignment - i.e. identifying whether patentees are companies (private business enterprise), universities and higher education institutions, or governmental agencies - thus becomes a necessary condition for further analysis of the dynamics underlying technological performance. Within the framework of the PATSTAT Task Force on Harmonized Patent Statistics, efforts have been launched to produce an exhaustive sector assignment taxonomy. EUROSTAT has invited experts from K.U.Leuven to develop such a methodology.

In this paper, the methodology that we have developed in 2006 (Van Looy, du Plessis & Magerman, 2006) will be outlined and updated. It will be shown that the methodology proposed is effective both in terms of completeness (over 99% of the patent volume for USPTO, EPO, and WIPO are assigned to discrete categories) and accuracy (99% of the assigned codes reflect the category correctly). At the same time, further improvements are still considered both feasible and relevant. In order to ensure that such improvements are put into effect, EUROSTAT and its development partners (K.U.Leuven and SOGETI) have deliberately chosen to put the methodology into the public domain. This action is, in effect, an invitation to researchers and analysts to further build on the methodology and to improve it where feasible. As promised in the first methodological paper new improvements are given in this update of the methodological paper.

² Patent indicators are now to be found in recurrent publications of the National Science Foundation (US), the European Commission (Science and Technology Indicator Reports) and the OECD alike.

³ Analysis by domains is feasible by using the WIPO International Patent Classification or aggregation schemas like the 'Systematic of OST/INPI/FhG ISI of 5 technology areas and 30 sub-areas'; analysis in relation to industries is enabled by concordance schemes based on patent classification, like the MERIT concordance table (Verspagen, 1994), the OECD Technology Concordance (Johnson, 2002), or the EC DG Research and FhG ISI/OST/SPRU concordance table (Schmoch, Laville, Patel, Frietsch, 2003).

The paper is structured as follows: in the following section, we first highlight previous efforts to arrive at an exhaustive sector assignment of patentee names. This overview leads to the conclusion that additional development efforts are indeed relevant. In Section 3, we outline the principles followed in developing the methodology, and we present the outcomes obtained. This will allow us to draw conclusions on performance and to delineate avenues for further improvement in the methodology, in Section 4.

2. Existing Sector Typologies

EUROSTAT aims to allocate one of the following sectors to each patentee: (a) individual (private) applicant (b) private business enterprise (c) government (agency) (d) university/higher education (e) private non-profit. This classification shows similarities with the existing sector classification developed by OECD in the context of conducting surveys on research and development, as outlined in the Frascati Manual (2002).

The Frascati Manual builds on the classification of the System of National Accounts (SNA). This system distinguishes between the following sectors: non-financial corporations, financial corporations, general government and non-profit institutions serving households, and households. In the OECD Frascati Manual (2002), largely based on the SNA 1993, higher education has been designated as a separate sector, and households are considered part of the private non-profit sector. Five sectors are identified in the Frascati Manual:

(1) Business enterprise

Includes: (a) all firms, organizations and institutions with the primary activity of the production of goods or services for sale to the general public, (b) the private non-profit institutions mainly serving them. The core of this sector is made up of private enterprises. Additionally, this sector includes public enterprises and non-profit institutions that are market producers of goods and services other than higher education. Examples of these non-profit institutions include: research institutes, clinics, hospitals, private medical practitioners, chambers of commerce, and agricultural, manufacturing or trade associations.

(2) Government

The government sector is composed of all departments, offices and other administrative bodies which do not normally sell to the community, as well as those that administer the state and the economic and social policy of the community. Non-profit organizations controlled and mainly financed by government but not administered by the higher education sector are also included in this sector. Furthermore, units associated with the higher education sector but mainly serving the government sector should also be included in the government sector.

(3) Private non-profit

This sector includes private non-profit institutions serving the general public and private individuals or households.

The following types of private non-profit institution should not be included in this sector:

Those mainly rendering services to enterprises

Those primarily serving government

Those entirely or mainly financed and controlled by government

Those offering higher education services or those controlled by higher education institutions.

(4) Higher education

The higher education sector includes all universities, colleges of technology and other institutions providing post-secondary education, irrespective of their source of finance or legal status. Research institutes, laboratories and clinics operating under the direct control of, administered by, or associated with higher education institutions should also be included in this sector.

(5) Abroad

This sector consists of all institutions and individuals located outside the political borders of a country and all international organizations including facilities and operations within the country's borders.

It should be noted that individual (private) applicants do not show up as a separate category in the Frascati classification; in addition, the 'Abroad' category carries little relevance when classifying patentee names. Finally, whilst the definition of categories is generally clear and precise, the matching of name characteristics to the different categories is not clear-cut for certain types of organization. For instance, hospitals could be classified as either 'business enterprise', 'private non-profit' or 'higher education' depending on the governance mode under which they operate. As demonstrated later in this paper, the sector in which a given organization should be classified is not always clear from looking solely at name field information found in the patent system. There is also the problem of a given institution being allocated to two sectors, e.g. when different objectives are being pursued by one and the same organization.

Overview of approaches for sector allocation

Broadly speaking, one can make a distinction between two approaches for assigning sector codes. The first option involves building further on existing efforts and classification schemes that already make a distinction between different types of actor, and refining them so that they correspond to the targeted classification. The second option consists of developing 'bottom-up' methods to assign applicants to different categories. Given the amount of effort required to assign all applicants to categories from scratch, the first option is clearly preferable.

The most exhaustive effort to allocate patentees to different sectors has been undertaken within the framework of the USPTO system. As the USPTO patent system already allocates assignees to different categories, this classification provides the obvious starting point to further develop a sector classification. It should be noted that a similar codification does not exist in the EPO database. Nevertheless, if the USPTO classification proves to be relevant and accurate, the sector information available in the USPTO system could be related to the EPO database using harmonized names. The NBER patent citation data file (Hall et al, 2001, Jaffe and Trajtenberg, 2002) also classifies USPTO assignees into sectors. A closer inspection of the NBER sectors reveals that the same classification as the USPTO database system is used.

Hence, the first exercise conducted to develop an appropriate sector assignment method is related to assessing the accuracy and relevancy of the existing USPTO sector classification. We used a sample of patent assignees from USPTO to validate the sector classification of the USPTO. The USPTO assignee table provides information on all the assignees for each of the granted USPTO patents in the USPTO dataset. For each assignee, the USPTO has provided an organizational type code: namely, US company (2 or 12⁴), foreign company (3 or 13), US individual (4 or 14), foreign individual (5 or 15), US government (6 or 16), foreign government (7 or 17), county government (8 or 18), and state government (9 or 19). It should be noted that this classification does not coincide with the target categories: Universities and private non-profit sector categories are missing.

To validate whether the organizational types allocated to the assignees by the USPTO are correct, we assessed a sample of 500 assignees for each organizational type. As the total number of patentees with sector codes 8 and 9 did not exceed 500, all assignees in these two categories have been validated. Table 1 provides a summary of the findings.

Table 1: Validation of assignee types given in the USPTO patent database

Assignee Types	Number of Assignees Incorrectly Assigned to Assignee Type*	Number of Patents Incorrectly Assigned*
2. US Company	65/500 (13 %)	7 419 (4.5 %)
3. Foreign Company	70/500 (14 %)	6 948 (4.6 %)
4. US Individual	0/500 (0 %)	0 (0 %)
5. Foreign Individual	21/500 (4 %)	72 (7.2 %)
6. US Government	39/500 (8 %)	60 (0.4 %)
7. Foreign Government	48/500 (10 %)	96 (6.4 %)
8. County Government	5/9 (56 %)	5 (56 %)
9. State Government	30/42 (71 %)	56 (68 %)

* The percentage for the sample analyzed is given in parenthesis.

As Table 1 demonstrates, the existing sector allocation has certain shortcomings. Although the 'individual (private) applicant', 'private business enterprise', and 'government' sectors are present, the 'university/higher education' and 'private non-profit' sectors are not included. In addition, the existing allocation of assignees to organizational types includes a considerable level of error, except in the case of 'US individuals'. Moreover, the following issues merit our attention:

⁴ The number one in front of the code identifies part interest.

- In the existing USPTO classification, organizations such as hospitals, higher education, and private non-profit organizations do not have a unique code to identify them. In the sample, universities and hospitals are usually given the types 2 or 3 to identify US and foreign universities/hospitals respectively. It should be noted that a separate list for US universities, developed independently from this categorization, is available at USPTO. A similar list is not, however, available for foreign universities.
- Institutes (public/non-profit) are mostly assigned types 2 and 3 for US and foreign institutes respectively but are also found in categories 6 and 7; the criteria used to arrive at these classifications remain unclear. (Battelle Memorial Institute –type 2; Florida Institute of Phosphate Research – type 2; Institut National De La Recherche Agronomique – type 3; Fruit Tree Research Station, Ministry Of Agriculture, Forestry And Fisheries – type 3; Institut National De La Sante Et De La Recherche Medicale (INSERM) – type 6; Commissariat A L'energie Atomique – type 6; Stichting Rega Vzw – type 7; Hadasitmedical Research Serv. & Devel. LTD. – type 7)

Having observed that several sectors are in need of refinement and that some categories need to be developed in their entirety, we decided to adopt a different approach. In this approach, a set of rules will be developed that relates relevant information from the name field of patentees to specific sector categories. In applying this logic to the full patentee list as identified in the USPTO and EPO patent system, it is evident that different types of rules are needed; besides more generic rules that relate several patentees to one sector, a set of rules will be required targeted at specific organizations. In addition, conditionality will be introduced to minimize the number of multiple sector assignments. Without case-based allocation criteria and conditionality, accuracy as well as completeness will be negatively affected. 'Completeness' refers to the extent to which the sector allocation methodology is able to assign all patentees to a discrete category. 'Accuracy' refers to the extent to which the sector allocation correctly identifies the actual status of the patentee.

3. Methodology

Developing a methodology with a comprehensive set of rules is a highly iterative process in which it is eminently desirable to work on the full set of assignee names in order to adequately assess the impact of discrete rules. Accordingly, development and production efforts tend to coincide. In order to improve the existing methodology we used the patentee list extracted from PATSTAT September 2009. In consequence, the methodology will reflect the particularities of the underlying database.

Whilst the overall logic strives for a maximum number of rules that follow logically from information found in the name fields of the patent database, concerns about completeness and accuracy point to the need for assessment and a certain level of expert involvement. In some cases, the category to which an organization belongs is not clear from the patentee information alone because the name gives no real indication. In addition, some categories where the governance mode is crucial for sector allocation pose specific challenges, as in the case of hospitals, which can be private business sector, university/higher education, government or private non-profit.

Equally, additional information would be required on whether certain research organizations funded by government are administered by the Ministry of Education, in which case they would fall within the university/higher education sector. Finally, there are cases where clues found in the name fields result in multiple sector allocations. Such cases will require a specific assessment resulting in case-based decision criteria. Depending on the desired levels of accuracy and completeness, additional data verification efforts could become considerable.

Within the framework of the development of this methodology, we targeted levels of completeness and accuracy of 99%. This means that in applying all rule-based and case-based criteria to the patentee list, 99% of all patents⁵ must be assigned to just one sector, with a degree of error of less than 1%.

3.1 Methodology

The first principle underlying the methodology is straightforward; maximize the number of generic rules that can translate clues found in patentee names into the proper sector code. This rule-based logic works on the assumption that information found in the patentee names can provide clues to ‘sector’ membership. Such clues can be parts of names, specific words (e.g. government) and/or terms signalling specific legal forms (Inc.). If such clues can be identified in a systematic manner, they can be integrated into one script, which in itself allows for an automated allocation of sector codes. From an efficiency point of view, such an approach is clearly preferable but it implies several assumptions. First of all, a sufficient number of patentee names should include such clues. Secondly, one-to-one relationships between clues and specific sector codes are preferable. Finally, a single name should only contain clues pertaining to one specific sector code. As the following sections demonstrate, several cases do not meet these ideal criteria. In order to remedy this situation, additional principles have been introduced. For patentees characterized by larger patent portfolios and for which generic rules do not result in an assignment, sectors are allocated on the basis of case-by-case decisions. Moreover, validation efforts – applied throughout the process – reveal that generic rules generate occasional errors and assign certain patentees to the wrong sector (e.g. GMBH is often found in association with companies, but not always). For assignees with more than five patents validation efforts have been undertaken, resulting in the development of an extensive set of additional case oriented rules. A final principle has been introduced in order to address the occurrence of multiple sector assignment. Again, for patentees with more than five patents *conditional rules*⁶ have been developed that result in a proper allocation of specific names (E.g. a patentee name has the words University, Foundation and a company legal form e.g. LTD. The sector codes 2, 4 and 6 are allocated to the name (Georgia State University Research Foundation, INC.). This is corrected by the conditional rule: if University and Foundation are both in the patentee name then the sector code 4 should be given; City Of Hope Research Institute received sector code 3 and 6 correct code is 4 therefore a conditional rule was added to correct for this incorrect double sector code assignment).

⁵ Levels of accuracy and completeness have been assessed on patent volume coinciding with allocated patentees. As the majority of patentees hold only one patent, striving for accuracy and completeness on the level of patentee would involve considerable additional resources, mainly for verification purposes.

⁶ See Step 8 of appendix one.

An exercise of this nature is time consuming since it involves an assessment based on secondary sources (mostly web searches); however, it is feasible within a limited time frame, if an exhaustive allocation result (100%) is not required. Figure 1 presents a diagrammatic summary of the approach followed in allocating sector codes to patentee names. The starting point is an initial list of keywords that are considered indicative of a certain category in the sector classification. Table 2 provides a sample of the keywords used for each sector.

Table 2: Examples of keywords/clues used to identify patentee sectors⁷

(1) Individual	"DIPL.-ING."; "PROF."; "DR."; "DECÉDÉ"; "DECEASED*"; "DIPL. ING."; "PH.D"; "DIPL.- GEOGR."; "ING."; "*ÉPOUSE *"

These keywords/clues are applied to the full list of unique patentee names. In this update of the methodology, the patentee names from PATSTAT September 2009 are used as source data. This implies a total dataset of 9,310,595 (11,100,882 based on person id's not necessarily unique) unique patentee names of which 349,765 are derived from EPO, 1,560,738 from WIPO and 1,250,384 from USPTO. The total number of patent documents related to these patentees amounts to 44,383,534 for PATSTAT as a whole; 2,089,060 unique patents for EPO, 1,607,554 for WIPO and 6,032,306 for USPTO. In the update of the methodology an extra field was included in the table, which gave the patentee name a code 1 if it ever appeared as inventor. This field will be used in a final step to identify individuals which cannot be identified with one of the existing rules.

Patentees were previously assigned to the following six sectors: (1) individuals; (2) private enterprises; (3) government; (4) university; (5) hospital; (6) research institutes & non-profit. This – more disaggregate - classification is more suited to the rule-based methodology adopted here. In a subsequent step, these different categories can then be aggregated in accordance with the reporting objectives sought. However, as will become clear, even this approach will not produce a straightforward sector assignment as found in the Frascati Manual. Problems increase when considering whether hospitals and research organizations (although clearly identifiable as such, in most cases) should be included in the government, private business enterprise, or private non-profit sectors depending on the organization's funding and governance. Sufficient levels of accuracy, within each category, will only be achieved by engaging in extended validation efforts based on secondary sources. In other words, the name alone does not reveal sufficient clues to arrive at a sector allocation, with sufficient levels of accuracy, for the majority of patentees in these categories. For this reason, analyzing information on establishment, funding and governance is needed in order to assign patentees correctly, as the following section demonstrates. In this update of the methodology we opted for a combination of the previous public and private non-profit institution sectors into a one 'public and private non-profit' sector. Hence, we recommend that patentees be allocated to 5 sectors: namely, (1) individuals; (2) private enterprises; (3) public and private non-profit organizations (4) universities and (5) hospitals.

On a technical level, it should be noted that the order of execution – i.e. which category is analyzed first - is also a point of concern since accuracy levels are affected significantly. In the methodology developed here, the rules are applied to patentees in the following sequence: private enterprises; universities; government & private non-profit sector; hospitals and finally individuals.

After application, validation efforts are geared to all possible outcomes. If only one sector code is allocated, accuracy of the findings obtained is assessed. Case based adaptations are introduced as needed, i.e. when too many false hits are generated by a particular rule. If names do not obtain a code, a search for additional generic rules is initiated. Moreover, if patent volume for such patentees is considerable, case-based decision criteria will be considered. Finally, the occurrence of multiple codes is assessed and additional, conditional, rules to remedy the situation are introduced. In the appendix we included the new and improved rules for this update of the methodological paper; these are given in bold and italics formatting. Notice that in the revised methodology, we incorporated the field 'inventor' to identify more individuals that were placed in the category unknown. If the patentee name had a code 1 in this field and was given the code 6 (unknown) then this name was identified as individual (e.g. "ITO TAKESHI"; "SATO KOJI" and "KOIKE NORIO").

For the first time we could use the harmonized names of patentees created by the method of Magerman et al. (2009 forthcoming) as a final validation step. These harmonized names were also used to identify the sectors for patentee names that were not yet identified (unknown). For these cases we applied the following rules if the patentee names received the same harmonized name but was identified once in the sector government & non-profit and once as unknown then the unknown cases were identified as belonging to the sector government & non-profit (the same rule apply for the sectors university and hospital). If the patentee names received the same harmonized name and it was once identified as company and once as unknown then the unknown names were then given the sector company if the length of the patentee name is longer than 5 characters (for short names there is a large amount of abbreviations and cases that might be incorrectly assigned to companies if this rule is applied). Table 3 provides examples of these additional rules.

Within a next step the refined rules are applied, resulting in a more complete and accurate sector allocation which leads to additional validation efforts. These steps are repeated until 99% of all patent volume is assigned to a sector and 99% of patents are correctly allocated to the sector.

3.2 Implementing the rule-based and case-based methodology: Results

In order to further clarify the principles and logic adopted, Table 4 contains a sample of 10 patentees for each category and the sector/s they are assigned to after applying an initial set of rules. The table also includes 10 patentees that are not yet allocated to a sector. In addition, some patentees are allocated incorrectly to a sector. For instance, VITO, a Flemish research organization (public), has been given a company code since its name includes a legal form (N.V.) that is mostly associated with companies. Likewise, Andreas Stihl is a company and not an individual inventor. Finally, it should also be noted that multiple codes occur frequently since one and the same name might include clues that suggest different sector allocations. For example, Virginia Foundation for Independent Colleges obtains a sector code for universities (Colleges) and one for private non-profit (Foundation).

These observations justify further efforts. These efforts focus on: 1) creating additional rules based on a content analysis of non-assigned patentee names; 2) refining rules in order to avoid multiple codes; and 3) verifying whether assigned codes are accurate and if not, introduce more refined rules. These refinements will imply that certain rules are made conditional.

After several iterations, a total level of completeness of over 96.02% is obtained (see Table 5) for PATSTAT assignees as a whole. For the EPO, USPTO and WIPO data respectively, 99.65 %, 98.74% and 99.57% of the patent volume obtains a code. The proportion of patentee names with a double count are limited, for the total PATSTAT list the number of patentees with more than one sector amounted to 0.43%; for EPO, USPTO and WIPO the patentee with a double sector were respectively 0.26%, 0.40% and 0.29%

In order to assess accuracy, a random sample of patentees (500 for the smaller sectors and 1000 for the larger sectors) in each category have been assessed in terms of correctness⁸, we also focus on the accuracy for the patent EPO, WO and USPTO systems separately. Table 6 provides an overview of the findings obtained in terms of accuracy. In several categories, the level of accuracy is sufficient, with less than 1% of the patent volume incorrectly assigned to the sector. For the hospital sector all the mistakes except one are hospitals and therefore not incorrectly assigned as such but there governance and funding are situated at a university.

Table 6: Results on the number of incorrectly assigned organizations from the final validation of sector assignment for a random sample of 500 patentees (1000 patentees for the individuals and private enterprises) in each sector

* For the patent systems a sample of 500 patentee names in the sectors company and individual were evaluated and 100 patentee names for the sectors government & non-profit, university and hospital

 In the sector hospital there could still be hospitals affiliated to universities but looking at the name itself does not identify these hospitals e.g. including the words: “Teaching hospital”/“academic hospital”.

Similar conclusions can be drawn for unassigned patentees and patentees for whom applying the methodology produces multiple codes. While the first category accounts for just under 4% of the total patent volume, a complete removal of this category entails manual verification of 1,087,853 patentee names. The total number of patentees obtaining multiple codes amounts to 72,025. Although this is a small proportion, the absolute numbers mean considerable resources will need to be deployed if a diagnosis based solely on manual verification efforts is to bear fruit. Also here, the analyst can opt for further refining cases which receive multiple codes, or consider these cases as ‘unknown’.

⁸ This assessment implied for each name a verification of the actual status, based mainly on analyzing information found on the websites of the organizations involved.

4. Conclusion

In this contribution, we developed a methodology designed to assign patentees to different sectors. This methodology combines both rule-based and case-based logic. The rule-based logic works on the assumption that information incorporated in patentee names can provide clues on ‘sector’ membership, which can then be translated into a set of rules for the automated allocation of sector codes. In practice, such a rule-based approach proves to be insufficiently complete and accurate. The absence of clues, as well as the simultaneous presence of several clues that suggest different sectors, is a common feature. In order to remedy this situation, a second, case-based, layer has been introduced. When applied in an iterative and sometimes conditional manner, quality levels, both in terms of completeness and accuracy, of 99% are obtained: less than 1% of the patent volume fails to obtain a sector code; the patent volume accurately assigned to a particular sector exceeds 99%.

Improving the accuracy levels in this category – and for the methodology as a whole – is feasible by introducing expert assessments in a systematic manner. Given the volume of names involved, such an effort is beyond the current resources of EUROSTAT and its partners who developed this methodology (INCENTIM/SOOS, K.U.Leuven). At the same time, numerous researchers and analysts are currently working on sector allocation with specific samples (e.g. technological fields, countries/regions, and sectors). For researchers engaged in such efforts, building on this methodology might be helpful; equally, the insights obtained by researchers and analysts might be beneficial for further refinement of the current methodology. In other words, by sharing the methodology developed among the different communities involved in patentee analysis, further improvements could be envisaged. Consequently, EUROSTAT and its partners decided to put the complete methodology into the public domain. In the appendices, the full set of procedures is made available, making allowances for implementation⁹, verification, and the development of appropriate extensions.

Furthermore, given its continuous involvement in the PATSTAT Taskforce activities, EUROSTAT, in collaboration with the researchers at K.U.Leuven who developed this methodology, is committed to making freely available all future improvements in this methodology, including those obtained from other researchers and analysts.
